Democratic State Convention. The Democrats of Michigan will meet The Democrate of Michigan will meet in state convention at the Auditorium, in the City of Detroit, on Tuesday, February 28, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of nominating one candidate for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Michigan, and two candidates for regents of the university, and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the convention. Each county in the state will be entitled to one delegate for each 500 yotes cast for Governor at which they represent in the convention.

The delegates from each congressional district will meet in caucus at 10 o'clock

A. M., on the day of the convention, at quarters to be hereafter designated by the central committee, to recommend persons for service in the organization of the con-vention. Each district is entitled to one member each of the committee on creden-tials, permanent organization and order of business and resolutions.

All electors who are in sympathy with the principles expressed in the party de-clarations, who have voted in the past clarations, who have voted in the find with the Democratic party, who find themselves desirous of associating with ly invited to participate in the caucuses for the election of delegates to this con-

Benjamin Franklin once said that he could determine the character of a community by the condition of its graveyard. Could his spirit make an audible criticism on many of our country cemetries of today, it would make the hearts in many a community tingle with shame. While in most of the larger cities and towns the beautiful park-like resting places are in keeping with the progress of the nineteenth century, yet it is regretable that many of the smaller towns and villages should be content with neglected graveyards. The places "in which the forefathers of the hamlet sleep," instead of being cared for with that love and respect that all people should have for the resting places of their dead, are in many nstances given no care whatever, weeds and underbrush being allowed to reign supreme; the dilapidated fences offering no protection from cattle, and the whole forming the saddest possible comments on the people of the community.

A medium that has done much toward lisseminating valuable information on the care and management of cemeteries, is the Modern Cemetery, an illustrated nonthly, published at Chicago, Ill. Its contributors are landscape artists and superintendents of the finest cemeteries in America, whose articles on this very important subject should be read by all who are interested in having well kept
